Rococo & Taupe is downtown Menlo Park's newest design destination. A gorgeous kitchen and bath showroom featuring a variety of styles and innovative products complements a design studio headed by owner and designer, Keith Quiggins.

Keith prides himself on following current style trends and the latest in kitchen technology. The showroom features a contemporary kitchen with a state-of-the-art multifunction sink, The Galley™, revolutionary in both design and function. In this space, Keith also exhibits his creativity and keen eye for contemporary work as well as classic designs.

Keith's talents reach beyond kitchen and bath design. Over the past 25 years, he has worked on extensive whole house remodeling projects as well as designing and building new family homes from the ground up.

Finding the right professional to guide your project will enhance your experience and simplify the process. Achieving award-winning results in remodeling, Keith has an endless amount of passion and vision for construction and design. Working as the design liaison between the craftsmen and contractors during the construction process, he assures that every detail is fine-tuned to make the homeowners' dreams a reality.

Keith received his design degree from the College for Creative Studies specializing in color, furniture, and interiors. He travels the world seeking design inspiration and, as a California Certified Interior Designer, he regularly attends design industry trade shows around the country to keep up on the most innovative products and design trends.

Do you have design challenges or remodeling questions? Keith is your resource for delivering expert guidance, stunning product, and amazing design solutions.
